London, Dec. 13 .- During the relaxation in all the offensive campaigns European interest is focused on the probabilities of some new but as yet undeveloped upheaval. It appears to be taken for granted on all sides that the policy of the Central Powers will be to attempt to gain a decision somewhere, while their opponents will prefer to devote the winter to preparations for warfare in the spring.

"The Observer" considers a German attempt to invade England as a desperate gamble, one of the fore most possibilities, and believes that the extensive movements of troops for embarking at Zeebrugge and in the Scheldt River.
